

Jeremiah:

This fall, the Kennedy Center sent a call out nationwide, asking everyone to share messages of thanks for arts teachers who made a difference in their lives.

We received a special message from Alina Perry-Smith we want to share with you!

From all of us at the Kennedy Center, thank you for the important role you play every day by inspiring the next generation of leaders.

“Jeremiah Jenner made learning photography easy and fun. He would teach a skill and then provide outings that would give us the practice we needed to perfect the skills. The locations changed based on the skill and each provided different expectations. He would follow-up by asking us to share our best image. It was a full circle instruction. I became a portrait photographer at his insistence, I haven't regretted my choice not even one day. His belief in his students makes a huge difference on if someone will stick with it. Thanks Jeremiah for inspiring me to become a life-long photographer.”
